IIT Delhi and IIIT-D come together for research in areas of mutual interest

The Indraprastha Institute of Information Technology Delhi (IIIT-D) has tied up with the Indian Institute of Technology Delhi (IITD) for establishing a common research programme to benefit academics and the research arena of both institutions. As part of a memorandum of understanding (MoU) signed on July 6, 2021, both institutions will collaborate for joint research in the area of computer science, engineering, management, and social sciences. Research on the above themes will also involve doctoral and post-doctoral students who would be jointly mentored by supervisors from both institutes. Funding for such joint supervision and collaboration will be met under Multi-institutional Interdisciplinary Research Project (MFIRP) schemes. Doctoral students will also be able to take advanced courses in the partnering institutions by the implementation of a seamless credit transfer process, the modalities for which will be met jointly. This IITD-IIITD programme will be coordinated by faculty scoordinators from both sides to further strengthen the initiative.
